Mitchell

The cover painting, Bucknell Landscape, was done expressly for L'AGENDA by our artist-in-residence, Bruce Mitchell.

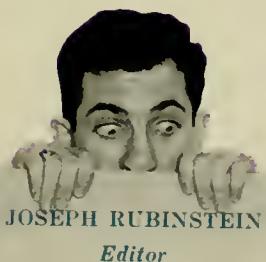

Having received wide recognition for his Bucknell paintings, Bruce has been described by art critics as "one of America's foremost landscape artists."

His paintings have been exhibited in prominent national and international showings and many have been acquired by leading museums including the Metropolitan and Whitney.

An artist war correspondent for LIFE magazine in World War II, Bruce has won many honors in his field, including the Guggenheim, Yaddo, and Tiffany Fellowships. He is the only American artist to have won all three of these awards.

Foreword

"L'AGENDA" is borrowed from the French for "the doings." It has been our intention in preparing the 1950 L'AGENDA to present a record of the doings we have all cherished during our four years at Bucknell. We have kept in mind the fact that the value of this book is cumulative, and that, in years to come, you will turn to L'AGENDA with proud reverie.

Every graduating class can find a unique anniversary all its own if it tries hard enough . . . fifty years since the first student flunked out . . . twenty since demonstration lectures have been in effect. Bucknell's class of 1950, however, represents an anniversary of which we are especially proud because it belongs entirely and exclusively to our class. The class of 1950 is the one hundredth class to be graduated from Bucknell University.

Our plan in presenting this record of our "doings" has been to portray the activities as outgrowths of Bucknell as an educational institution. We feel that our activities are an intrinsic part of our education and are classroom principles in practice. Consequently, each department has been presented under the administrative sections as they are listed in the catalogue, and each activity is included in the department which has the greatest effect on it.

DR. FLOYD G. BALLENTINE

Dr. Ballentine was graduated from Bucknell in the class of 1899. After four years at Harvard, where he received his Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees, he returned to our campus as an instructor in Latin. From 1904 to 1915 he held the position of Assistant Professor in Latin. In 1915 he was appointed a full Professor in Latin and continued in that capacity until his retirement in 1949. In 1936 he was also appointed Professor of Greek. In all, Dr. Ballentine served Bucknell continuously for 46 years.

Not only did he make his mark in the academic field, but he was likewise active in other phases of Bucknell life. In 1931 he accepted the post of varsity tennis coach which he retained until 1946. He served a longer period of service as an athletic coach at Bucknell than did any other individual.

His faithful service to Bucknell also included such posts on the campus as editor of the University catalog for more than 20 years, president of the Bucknell Scholars, and chairman of the editorial committee of the Bucknell University Studies. Dr. Ballentine was also a foundation member of the Mu chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

His literary contributions to well-known academic publications brought prestige to Bucknell and to her students. He edited an edition of Terence's play, The Tormentor. He is the author of articles which have appeared in the Harvard Studies in Classical Philology, the Proceedings of the American Philological Association and The Classical Weekly.

Throughout his entire career, he has worked consistently to increase the knowledge and understanding of the students at Bucknell. His long devoted service to the academic life of the University has left a mark which will not easily be surpassed. Dr. Ballentine truly symbolizes Bucknell as an educational institution in a free society.

"The Years Steal Swiftly O'er Us"

Since the class of 1950 is the one hundredth graduating class of Bucknell, the editors of L'AGENDA thought this would be an appropriate time to look back to the early years of our school.

The first commencement ceremony, held August 20, 1851, saw seven seniors graduated. There was occasion for great excitement and celebration. Each of the graduating seniors (they were all men) gave a long oration. There were speeches by the Acting President, and an address by a member of the faculty on the inauguration of a new president, Howard Malcom. The graduation exercises began early in the morning and ran late into the afternoon.

Perhaps the most interesting chronicle of the early years of our university is the college catalogue. The following are excerpts from that bulletin during the first decade of its publication, accompanied by a cartoon commentary. At that time Bucknell, then the University at Lewisburg, was really four schools: the University, the Male Academy, the Female Institute or Seminary, and the Primary Department.

CATALOGUE of the UNIVERSITY at Lewisburg, Pennsylvania

Location

This Institution is located in the Borough of Lewisburg, on elevated ground, commanding a delightful view of the Susquehanna river, and the surrounding country.

The location combines the advantages of both town and country.

Lewisburg is celebrated for the salubrity of its air, and high moral character of its inhabitants.

The University is situated within half a mile of the Institute. Persons having sons and daughters to educate, thus have the opportunity of sending them where they can enjoy each others society while pursuing their studies.

None but near relatives, or friends from a distance are allowed to visit the pupils.

Pupils from a distance are not expected to visit their homes during the current session, unless for reasons satisfactory to the principal.

Moral Culture

While it cannot be expected that a full moral guardianship can be exercised over College students by any Faculty of Instruction, it will be constantly regarded as an object of the deepest interest, and each professor is required to use his diligence, not only to suppress disorders, but to exert a pure and saving influence on the students, without obtruding upon them any sectarian peculiarities.

Besides the usual daily service in Chapel, at which every student is required to be present, there is a weekly prayer meeting in College, and a Bible Class for the critical study of the New Testament, taught by the Greek Professor; attendance on which is optional.

Punctuality

Punctuality is required in every department of duty; without it, character for study and scholarship can not be maintained.

The loss of a single lesson, or of the evening or morning study hour, may be felt for weeks. An imperfect recitation often leads to a succession of similar ones. One absence prepares the way for another, finally the pupil becomes discouraged, abandons all effort.

"... salubrity of its air, and high moral character . . ."

" . . . more than five miles from the University . . ."

Elocution

All the Classes, above the Primary Departments, have regular exercises in Composition and Elocution, during the year; on Wednesday Essays are read by the Juniors, and Orations delivered by the Seniors, in presence of the Faculty and Students; and every Saturday forenoon is devoted exclusively to reading select and original Compositions, to Declamation, and to Vocal Music.

Caution to Parents

There is a great hazard, in most cases, in allowing students to have in their possession any considerable sums of money, unless they have been accustomed to it at home. Some person in Lewisburg should be intrusted with the funds, who shall expend it as required and render exact accounts. Many a student has been ruined at college for want of this precaution.

No one should send a pupil who is not prepared to meet the expenses punctually, and thus prevent the contracting of debts. Such a habit abolishes all control of a parent over the expenses and is of itself an unspeakable injury to the youth. The storekeepers and mechanics in town are always solicited not to credit students.

Abstract of College Laws

VI—HOURS OF STUDY

1. From the beginning of the first session to the first of April, study hours shall be from 9 to 12 o'clock in the forenoon, from 2 to 5 in the afternoon, and from 7 to 10 in the evening. During the remainder of the year, from 8½ to 11½ in the forenoon, from 2 to 5 in the afternoon, and from 8 to 10 in the evening.

2. During these hours, every student is required to apply himself with diligence to his prescribed studies and pursuits; and such of the time as is not devoted to recitations, he shall remain in his room.

3. At 10 o'clock each student must be in his room, and lights must be extinguished by 10½ o'clock.

VII—DEVOTIONAL EXERCISES

1. Every student shall attend the daily devotional exercises in the Chapel, and conduct himself with becoming gravity, during the service, and while going to and returning from the same.

2. All students are required to attend public worship punctually on Sunday mornings; and such evidence of punctual attendance shall be given as the Faculty may require.

IX—DEPORTMENT

1. No pipe or segar shall be smoked in any of the passages or public rooms, or in or near any of the outbuildings; nor shall any student keep ardent spirits, or intoxicating liquors of any kind, except when prescribed by a physician for medicine, or permitted by the Faculty.

2. No student shall attend any theatrical entertainment or useless show in Lewisburg, nor frequent any house or shop, after being forbidden by the President.

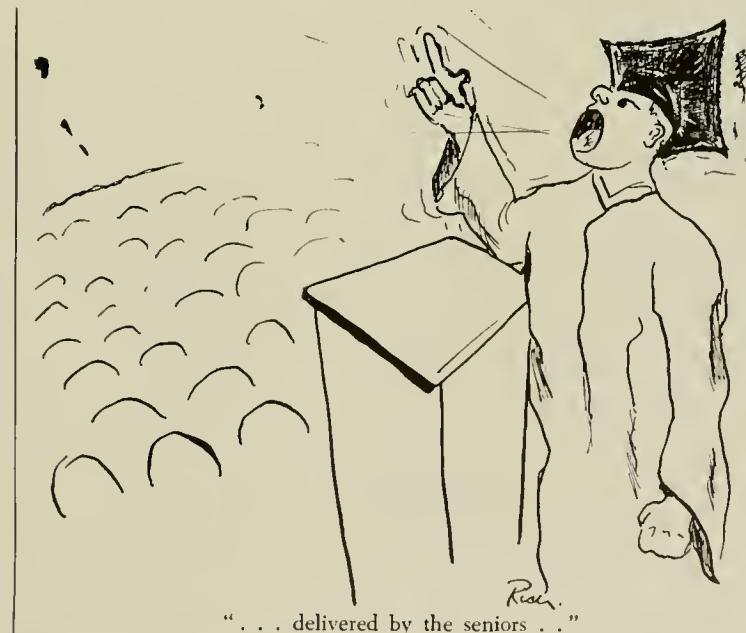

3. No student shall carry about with him any secret weapon; such as a dirk or pistol, nor take part in any duel, on pain of expulsion.

XXIII—TERMS AND VACATIONS

1. During term time no student shall go more than five miles from the University, without permission from the President.

" . . . may be felt for weeks . . ."

" . . . delivered by the seniors . . ."

"... should come furnished . . ."

2. At the end of a vacation, or leave of absence, a student will not be deemed to have returned, until the roll shall evince his presence at prayers.

It is of great consequence that students return to College in time to attend the first recitation or lectures of their class. An absence of a few days, when a new branch of study is begun, seldom fails to produce subsequent embarrassments, and sometimes the loss is not made up during the course.

Female Institute Principles

The first object of this Institution is to prepare young ladies for the cheerful discharge of the duties of life, and as this cannot be done by the mere training of the intellectual powers, attention is given to the education of the physical system and the heart.

Library

There is a well selected Library connected with the Institution, to which all the pupils have access, by paying the regular charges.

There is also a young ladies' Literary Society, styled by Philomathean Society, comprised of all such young ladies as may choose to join it, and are of proper age. The Society has semi-monthly meetings for debates, &c., &c. The members have succeeded in laying the foundation of a Library, which, through the liberality of the friends of the Institution, already numbers five hundred volumes of standard value.

To the Library, donations will be gladly received. Novels, Romances, and trashy literature rejected.

Government

The principal and Assistant Teachers will ever exercise a watchful care over the morals and health of the pupils, governing the school by appealing to their better feelings and higher principles—a mode of discipline which has thus far been found entirely successful.

Authority, however, will be maintained, and the requirements most certainly enforced.

The design of the school is not to make money, but afford an education to those who desire it. Pupils who do not conform to the laws and give themselves to study will be dismissed.

Recreation

The pupils are required to take daily exercise in the open air. This regulation is made, as young ladies generally neglect taking sufficient exercise; and without it health cannot be enjoyed. The health of the pupils is regarded as first in importance.

Saturday is devoted to recreation.

General Remarks

Each pupil should come furnished with umbrella, overshoes, table napkins, towels and silver spoon.

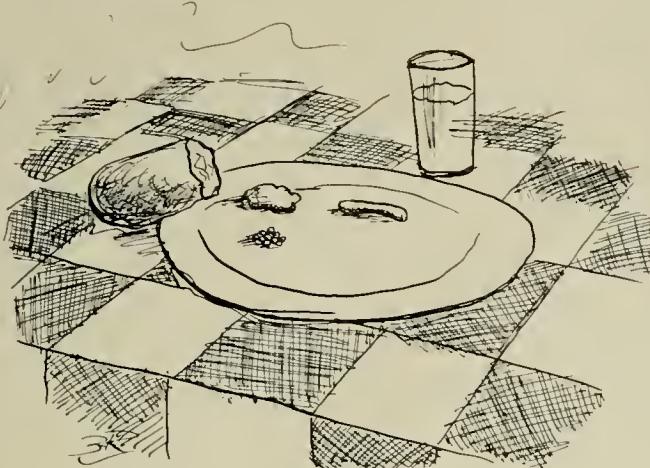

It is particularly requested that parents and guardian refrain from furnishing their daughters and wards with the means of procuring fruit, confectionery, &c.

"... no pipe or segar . . ."

"... prescribed by a physician . . ."

... 0.50 per week ...

... apply himself with diligence ...

Abstract of Laws

1. No pupil will be received under 11 years of age, and who has not acquired some knowledge of the elementary branches of an English education.
2. Pupils from a distance will, in all cases, reside in the Institute.
3. No pupil will leave the Institute grounds at any time, without permission from the Principal.
4. Teachers and pupils will take their meals at the same table, and both are expected to be punctual and exact in the discharge of every duty.

Free Allowance

A free allowance of pocket money leads a student into many snares, and greatly interferes with his progress in study. The money for minors should generally be deposited with some citizen or member of the Faculty, who will act as guardian and render semi-annual accounts; charging five per cent. commission on the amount expended.

Collegiate and Academic Expenses

Tuition in College,	$30.00 per annum
Tuition Academy,	20.00 "
Room rent,	7.50 "
Library—College Students,	2.00 "
Care and cleaning of public rooms,	1.00 "
Fuel,	1.00 "
Fuel for students' private rooms,	3.00 "
Repairs by general average,	.60 "

Board can be obtained from $1.75 to $2.75 per week. These, however, are above the usual prices in ordinary seasons. A goodly number of students board themselves, and in clubs, at an expense, ranging from $0.50 to $1.50 per week.

That is what the prospective student faced back in the 1850's. Those were the rules governing the first graduating class one hundred years ago.

We are attempting to present, in the following pages, a sample of what the campus is like today. The years have passed swiftly, new memories have been cherished by each class, progress and maturity have been marked characteristics of Bucknell as an educational institution.

... exercise a watchful care over the morals ...

ADMINISTRATION

ELIZABETH FREDERICK, secretary to the President, takes a letter.

President Hildreth presides at Chapel.

The President

September of '49 welcomed a new president to our campus. Possessing an ability common among genuine leaders, Horace Hildreth can and does converse on any subject from theology to hunting or football.

A homey New England twang in his speech leaves little question as to where he has spent most of his years. A native of Maine, he received his degrees from Bowdoin College and Harvard Law School. In 1928, he was admitted to the bars of Massachusetts and Maine. While serving as Governor of Maine, he was elected chairman of the National Governors Association. It was at this time that his twin brother, a source of confusion to all his friends, caused a moment of consternation for New York's Governor Dewey.

Bucknell's first family consists of President Hildreth and his hospitable wife, son "Hoddie", and three daughters—"Dodie", Katherine, and Ann. The family is just the right size for banquets on holidays.

Hunting and fishing are among President Hildreth's favorite extra-curricular activities. His wife accompanies him on all his hunting trips and provides steady competition in shooting prowess. The culmination of a successful day of hunting for the Hildreths is a dinner of wild duck "cooked for just eight minutes."

Although he is no less a fisherman than a hunter, he claims that he's never been able to find fishing grounds quite like the ones in Maine.

As Bucknell's new president, Mr. Hildreth has proven himself to be an alert leader, taking ready action on every problem brought before him. He has shown a sincere interest in the students and has proven to be a congenial friend to the many who have been fortunate enough to know him in the short time he's been here.

"... none quite like the ones in Maine."

Administration

From Bucknell's administration stem the wide scope of contacts the school maintains with its students and friends. Chief among its manifold activities, the administration provides the leadership and direction of the University and interprets its general policies.

With the administration rests the responsibility of defining the objectives of the University and maintaining them, helping students to adjust to new situations, and keeping Bucknell in the public eye. The future of the University depends upon the vision of these men and women who provide for organization, integration, and maintenance.

Roberts Hall is the nucleus of our administrative operations, housing the offices of the President, Dean of the College and Dean of Men, Public Relations, Recorder, Alumni, Registrar, Placement Bureau, and Visual Aids. A stroll through this building brings to view the panorama of activity carried out in these offices.

The administration has infinite responsibilities, but whether they are vested in President Hildreth, Dean Coleman, Dean Musser, or any of the rest of the administrative figures, all are essential parts which are co-ordinated to achieve the successful operation of the University.

ACADEMIC

PHI BETA KAPPA, National Scholastic Honorary Fraternity

TAU BETA PI, National Engineering Honorary Fraternity

Scholarship Organizations

The gold key of PHI BETA KAPPA signifies a person with "outstanding scholarship, an interest in the world around, and a mature personality," seeking a degree in liberal arts or pure sciences. Students who are in the upper tenth of the junior class or the first fifth of the senior class are eligible for membership in Bucknell's Phi Beta Kappa chapter. Recognition by Phi Beta Kappa may well be considered the greatest honor a student can receive.

The highest award granted to engineering students is membership in TAU BETA PI, National Engineering Fraternity. This is considered the Phi Beta of the Engineering school. Senior members of the Tau Beta Pi are elected from the upper fifth of their class; selection of juniors is made from the upper eighth. It is the purpose of Tau Beta Pi to act as an incentive to all engineers.

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA is the National Scholarship Honorary for Freshman women. To become a member of Alpha Lambda Delta one must attain an average of eighty-five percent. The intention of Alpha Lambda Delta is to promote high scholastic attainment among college women.

PHI ETA SIGMA is the National Honorary for Freshman men. A semester average of eighty-five percent is required for membership. Those who are recognized serve to encourage high scholastic attainment among freshman men.

ALPHA LAMBDA DELTA, National Scholastic Honorary Fraternity for Freshman Women

PHI ETA SIGMA, National Scholastic Honorary Fraternity for Freshman Men

MORTAR BOARD, National Leadership Honorary Society for Senior Women

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA, National Leadership Honorary Fraternity for Men

Leadership Organizations

Members of MORTAR BOARD, the honorary for senior women, are chosen each year from the junior class. These women have combined the highest qualities of leadership, scholarship, and service during their years at Bucknell. It is the function of Mortar Board to sponsor projects that are not otherwise performed by the school. This year's Mortar Board Chapter served as counsellors to women transfer students; they also sold calendars for the benefit of the Student Aid Fund.

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA is a national leadership fraternity for men, established at Bucknell in 1945. O. D. K. recognizes leadership in scholarship, athletics, social and religious affairs, publications and speech, music and dramatic arts. Men who have excelled in these qualities are selected from the junior and senior classes to be tapped for O. D. K. membership.

Each year students of Bucknell are honored by their election to "WHO'S WHO". From a group of senior students, selected by a faculty committee, the senior class voted for the final twenty who will represent Bucknell in the 1950 edition of "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities". Selection to "Who's Who—" is made on the basis of scholarship, cooperation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, citizenship and service to the school, and promise of future usefulness to business and society.

PHI SIGMA, National Honorary Biological Fraternity

Biological Science

Biology students examine lab specimens.

The Botany Building

Taylor Hall, Taylor Annex, and the Botany building house the Biological Science Department. The Bio Sci major may be preparing for any of a number of specialties. These include pre-medical or pre-dental work, entomology, botany, medical and commercial laboratory technique, research biology, and the teaching of biology.

Lectures, field trips, and laboratory procedures comprise the schedule of the major of biology. The beginning courses include a study of comparative anatomy through laboratory analyses of the invertebrate and vertebrate animals. Advanced lab experiments deal with nutrition and the care of mice, guinea pigs, and sheep.

Most of the extensive experimentation has been with hamsters. Students of this department have successfully raised over one thousand hamsters and care daily for approximately one hundred in their own "zoo". Somewhat resembling rats, but with stubby tails and large pouches in their cheeks, hamsters are ideal for experimentation because they are prolific, have no odor, and are susceptible to many diseases of humans.

The botany division includes such courses as Plant Physiology, Plant Histology, Plant Ecology, and General Horticulture. Studies are made of microscopic structures, photosynthesis, and environmental factors in plant development.

Practical studies are made in the labs of the microbiological quality of milk from local samples. Studies are made on location of rural water supplies, stream pollution, sewage disposal, and water purification. Laboratory procedures are by the standard methods of the American Public Health Association.

Extra-curricular activities in the field are carried out under the auspices of PHI SIGMA, the National Honorary Biological Fraternity. The honorary is specifically devoted to the stimulation of interest in biological research, and prospective members must show research purpose. To become a member, a student must complete a research paper which must be accepted by the members.

DELTA MU DELTA, National Honorary Economics Fraternity

Commerce and Finance

The Commerce and Finance Department, which is centered in West College, is subdivided into general economics, accounting and business, banking and finance, marketing, industrial theory, merchandising, business management, and secretarial practice. The Department offers both a complete commerce and finance course and economics majors in separate fields for those whose interests are in specialization and who do not require the wide gamut of background in the regular C & F course. The Commerce and Finance Department is equipped to instruct the student on almost every level of economics, both theoretical and practical.

The Society for the Advancement of Management is a student organization whose object it is to study methods of eliminating waste and of increasing efficiency in management. DELTA MU DELTA, National Honorary Economics Fraternity, offers membership as a reward to those students of economics who have displayed interest and high academic achievement in their chosen field.

Education

As teacher training has become an increasingly important phase of the American educational system, the preparation of prospective teachers has received more emphasis at Bucknell. Originally, the Education Department was part of the Philosophy Department, and not until 1916 did it become a department in its supervisor. Dr. George B. Larson became the head of the Department upon Dr. Phillips' death, and he was succeeded by Dr. Frank G. Davis in 1924. As of September, 1949, the Education Department resumed its training of elementary school teachers, a service which it had discontinued during the Second World War. The Department is one of the five Pennsylvania educational units approved for the training of all types of school administrators.

In recent years, a prevalent topic of conversation at Bucknell has been "my kids". These are the teachers-to-be, discussing their first pupils. For eight weeks, students who have completed the required courses in education visit schools in the surrounding district to teach under the guidance of already established teachers. Thus, in actual classrooms, they plan their first lessons, do their first reprimanding, and learn by doing. They put into practice the theories they were taught in their erstwhile education courses. The enthusiastic commendation of the practice-teachers themselves attests to the value of practice teaching in the educational curriculum. Practice teaching is merely one of the modern educational techniques employed by the Bucknell Department of Education.

Supplementing the teacher training program, there are two professional fraternities sponsored by the Education Department, KAPPA PHI KAPPA for men and KAPPA DELTA EPSILON for women. Through their manifold activities, these fraternities endeavor to enrich the education of prospective teachers. For the last twenty-five years, the Department has conducted a summer demonstration school, numerous conferences on educational methods, and a guidance workshop.

Engineering

American Institute of Electrical Engineers, National Professional Society

Electrical

The initial work in electrical engineering is centered about electrical machinery such as generators, motors, and electronic circuits. Laboratory experiments supplement the lectures in explaining the performance of this equipment, while advanced courses present specialized phases of this study.

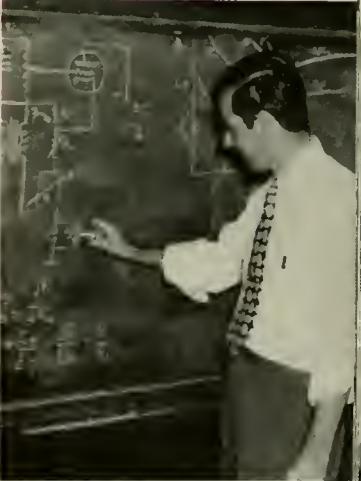

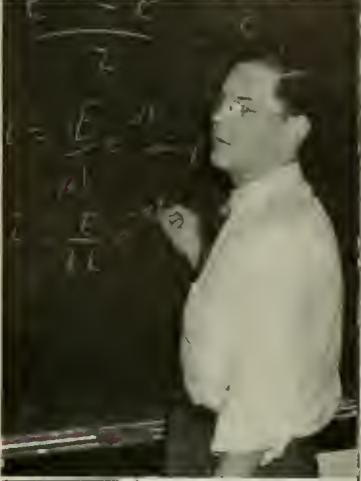

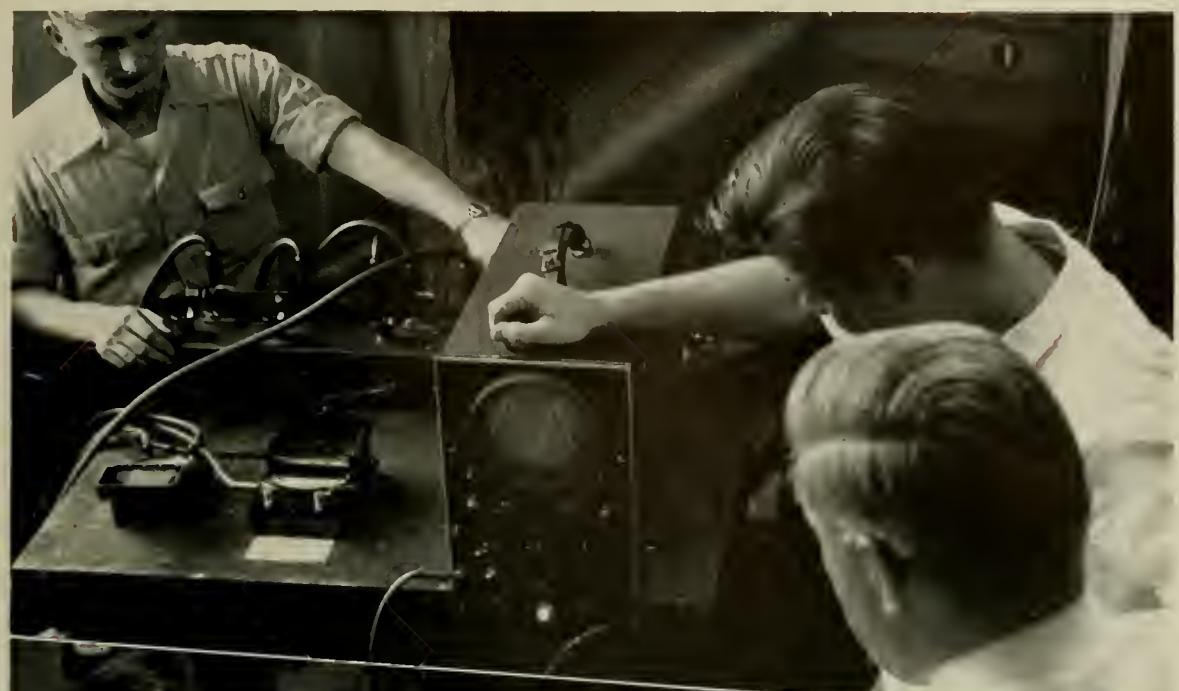

To keep abreast of recent developments in this field, the student engineer may join the joint chapter of the Institute of Radio Engineers and the American Institute of Electrical Engineering. At meetings, students and guest speakers present topics of current interest. Also, field trips to installations and plants in the surrounding area are conducted in order to acquaint members with the practical application of classroom theory and fundamentals. A recent trip was made to the Safe Harbor hydroelectric project, Pennsylvania's "Grand Coulee Dam on the Susquehanna," where water power is transformed to electrical power and transmitted to the consumer.

Membership in the AIEE-IRE allows the engineering student to meet his fellow engineers on a social basis and is an unmistakable asset to his preparation for his profession.

Civil

In 1921, the Civil Engineering Department installed a student chapter of the American Society for Civil Engineers. The purpose of this organization is largely to promote social and professional contact with prominent men in the field of civil engineering. At semi-monthly meetings, the student engineer has the opportunity to hear nationally recognized military, highway, and bridge engineers speak and to see technical motion pictures related to his work. Several meetings during the year are based essentially on student participation. In these, the student engineers discuss their civil engineering jobs of the previous summer or report on research work on which they have been engaged.

Our ASCE chapter publishes a semi-annual magazine entitled "On the Level" which informs students of activities in the professional engineering field. And, for the first time in its history, the Society has published a "Handbook" of the Department, designed primarily to impart information to freshmen in the engineering field.

In April, several delegates from Bucknell attended the eleventh Annual ASCE Convention at the University of Pennsylvania. Here students from many schools presented technical papers in a competitive contest. The substance of these papers concerned the contributions of one's knowledge and outlook to civil engineering as a profession.

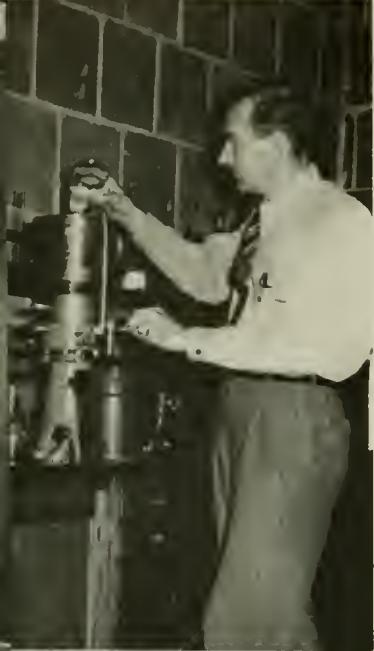

Surveying is one of the basic courses for the civil engineer.

Chemical

Chemical engineering is concerned, to a large degree, with research, development, design, and production management in the manufacturing industries involving chemical or physical changes. As the student develops these fundamentals, he has a chance in his senior year to observe them in actual operation on an annual plant tour. This year's tour, under the guidance of Dr. Cooper and Professor Smuts, covered the cities of Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York, where many industries such as DuPont and Standard Oil were observed.

In order to advance chemical engineering and to promote a greater interest in the field, the American Institute of Chemical Engineers has been established at Bucknell. Eminent men from chemical industries are guest speakers at the monthly meetings of the Society and technical films are presented to give the chemical engineer a broader outlook on his profession. Among many other activities, some of our chemical engineering students recently attended the Eastern Regional Convention at Syracuse University.

Mechanical

Most of the time of the mechanical engineer is consumed in the various laboratories in which the principles of "book learning" are applied. Practical experience is gained in the machine shop lab, hydraulics lab, and the heat and power lab where the intricacies of steam and internal combustion are thoroughly studied. But the mechanical engineer does not spend all his hours in the Engineering building; near the river is the foundry, erected in 1915, which is equipped with appliances necessary for molding and casting.

Each year the M. E.'s join seniors in the other branches of the engineering department in a tour of several of the prominent industrial plants in the East, thus observing the mechanics of their chosen field in action.

Further knowledge, gained in a more social atmosphere than that of the classroom, is fostered by the ASME which brings outstanding persons in the field of Mechanical Engineering to the campus for the benefit of all M. E.'s.

The students visited manufacturing plants in order to become familiar with processes as applied to industry.

English

The English major may specialize in literature, journalism, or composition. Also, students are trained to go into high schools and universities to teach the subject.

The English Department offers opportunity for students to gain practical experience in journalism and creative composition by working on The Bucknellian, L'AGENDA or The Student Handbook. While working, the students discover what it is to meet deadlines, write copy, take pictures, and deal with printers.

Cap and Dagger and The University Players offer opportunities for theatrically inclined students to try their hand at everything from acting and directing to painting scenery and selling tickets. TAU KAPPA ALPHA, SIGMA TAU DELTA, THETA ALPHA PHI, and PI DELTA EPSILON, honoraries which give recognition to outstanding students, are all linked, in various degrees, to different sections of the English Department.

The English Department not only teaches students proficiency from an academic aspect of the subject, but also offers them experience in various fields akin to English.

To be a member of TAU KAPPA ALPHA, National Forensic Fraternity, one must participate in at least one inter-collegiate debate and show marked superiority in debating. The main function of this organization is to sponsor, in conjunction with the Debate Club, the intra-mural debates between fraternities and sororities. The subject for this year's intra-mural debate was, "Resolved that Communists should be barred from teaching in American colleges and universities."

"... a hodge-podge of confusion."

Photographers talk shop

L'Agenda

L'AGENDA office has indeed been a hodge-podge of confusion from the time classes began in September to the day the books were finally distributed. The busy clacking of typewriters, the persistent jangle of the telephone, and the frenzied activities of the staff marked the scene through the stages of the publication's progress.

Had you dropped in any time at L'AGENDA office, you would have found an industrious soul tucked in a corner with a typewriter, another bent over the layout busily manipulating a slide rule, and at least three of the staff members at a "business" conference at the editor's desk. One of the photographers would dash in with prints fresh out of the hypo and some self-aggrandizing remarks as to how he obtained the shots. Sooner or later an ad-solicitor would come in with a batch of cuts or another sad story of the deplorable business conditions in which the merchants "just can't spare a cent."

As if this were not enough confusion, someone was always changing the layout dummy or cutting their nails in the paper cutter. There was the persistent jangle of the phone, a banging door, someone singing off key, and shouts of "where's page two?"; "Someone go out for coffee!"; "Did that last batch of pictures come out?"; and "Are we still within the budget?"

Perhaps partly in spite of all this confused activity, but mostly because of it, L'AGENDA finally went to press.

"... a business conference at the editor's desk."

"... a dizzy whirl!"

Bucknellian

After minor news, features, and editorials accumulate throughout Monday and Tuesday, "Hectic Wednesday" arrives; the day the editor cuts class and works all day in the little print shop north of Market Street.

In the morning, pages two, three, six, and seven are set up, proofed by the editor, and put to press. By the afternoon, the print shop is going full blast. The press shakes the whole building, and its noise is deafening. In the Bucknellian office, a little area partitioned-off from the print shop, the editor and his staff go to work on the final four pages.

"Where's that news editor with some copy?" shouts the editor just before the news editor, with a handful of stories, comes puffing into the office after a quick run from the hill . . . The phone rings, and someone has a classified ad: "For Sale-1929 Buick in excellent condition" . . . Around the horseshoe desk in the center of the room reporters correct copy and galley proofs while editors with sticky hands paste up their page dummies.

The office is a dizzy whirl. Someone wants to know if a headline is okay; the printer calls above the roar of the press to say that the last headline won't fit; over in the corner, Professor Ewing, the adviser, reads a copy of the first half of the paper and points out mistakes; the Sports editor wants to know how much of the basketball story he can have for page four.

Then, by six o'clock the office is empty. Thursday morning the editor returns to make last-minute corrections and put the paper to bed. As usual, the Bucknellian is delivered Thursday afternoon, and the staff crosses off another week on the calendar.

PI DELTA EPSILON, National Honorary Journalism Fraternity

PI DELTA EPSILON, the National Honorary Journalism Fraternity commends students by rewarding those who have done outstanding work on campus publications, stimulating those interested in journalism, and furthering this interest into wider channels. The group has no regularly scheduled meetings or academic assignments. Evidence of its purpose is realized, however, by the application of the techniques and theories of journalism through scripts used by radio station WBVU and in the production of the major student publications.

The ideals of the fraternity, as stated in its code, include "intellectual honesty, freedom of thought, leadership in campus affairs, accuracy, good taste, and the realization that the college is an entity greater than its publications." It is by striving to attain these ideals that the members of Pi Delta Epsilon hope to improve the publications that they give to the student body.

The Literature Library affords an excellent reference for students and faculty in the English, History, and Language departments. Books of specialized subject matter pertaining to these departments are on file here. The library serves as a study hall for students between classes and houses a complete file of Cap and Dagger theatre material.

Radio

Radio Workshop, under the direction of Pat Winther, is located in a tiny white house on Seventh Street. Approximately seventy Bucknellians work there in order to keep WVBU on the air from seven till twelve-thirty each night except Saturday.

WVBU's programs include musical disc jockey shows like the popular "Bitter End" show, news broadcasts of campus and world news, drama like the Bucknell Radio Playhouse, and a variety of Quiz Shows.

For the first time in the history of WVBU, Bucknell's football and basketball games played at other colleges were broadcast on the campus. Radio Workshop members did the engineering and sports commentary on such programs, while the financial end of the project was taken care of by local advertisers, student contributions, and money donated by the Student-Faculty Congress.

Students who want to be a regular part of WVBU must first contribute thirty hours of work to the station. Jobs around the station include writing scripts, engineering, and announcing. There are places in the Radio Workshop for radio technicians, record librarians, and people who enjoy working in the office or with the publicity department.

Radio Workshop is not only a great deal of fun and much hard work, but the programs are a source of enjoyment to all listeners.

Dramatics

One Thursday each month around 4:30, Bucknell Hall becomes crowded with over two hundred Cap and Dagger members and apprentices. At this time regular monthly business meetings are conducted by the student officers of C. and D. From these meetings stem the organization and planning of Cap and Dagger activity.

Under the direction of a C. and D. student director, try-outs and rehearsals begin six weeks prior to show time. This involves many hours invested in rehearsing before the cast can reach their goal. Meanwhile, the C. and D. workshop is constantly stirred with activity as the production staffs construct and paint scenery.

Two nights before actual performance the show moves to the Lewisburg High School for dress rehearsal. Then the show depends on the efforts of the light crew, stage crew, and props staff to contribute to the essentials of a finished production. All would be in vain, however, without the efforts of publicity, and other business staffs.

Following each show, C. and D. sponsors a Critic Forum. From these discussions, led by leading authorities on campus, come many helpful suggestions to improve their dramatic productions.

Dramatics

Cap and Dagger is proud of its heritage—she is one of the largest, most active organizations on campus, operating financially independent of the school. Cap and Dagger presents three plays each year. C. and D. holds a forty percent interest in the University Players.

Actors' Lab, "This Is Your Cap and Dagger", radio show, and the Little Theatre Committee are all by-products of Cap and Dagger. Actors' Lab works primarily on one act plays presented in theatre-in-the-round. The purpose of the lab is to help members develop their own theory and ability in acting. The radio show, not regularly broadcast, attempts to promote awareness of the theatre in this area, by publicizing the activities of Cap and Dagger. The Little Theatre Committee has worked for over a year drawing plans, discussing ways of raising money, conferring with the Administration—all in the hope that a Little Theatre may soon be on its way.

A new English course, Dramatic Interpretation, started this past semester, and the fact that beginning next fall the English major will be able to specialize in a fourth field, Drama, certainly reveals the growing importance of the dramatic arts at Bucknell.

University Players present "The Vagabond King."

The University Players represents the coordination of eight campus organizations which produce a musical each year. Those organizations which partake in the activity of the University Players include Cap and Dagger, Women's Glee Club, Men's Glee Club, Theta Alpha Phi, Symphony Orchestra, Band, Modern Dance Club, and Art Club. The University Players began their series of triumphs with the presentation of "The Pirates of Penzance" followed by this year's success "The Vagabond King".

The National Dramatics Honorary Fraternity, THETA ALPHA PHI, has as its cardinal goal the promotion of interest in dramatics. Engaging in research for Cap and Dagger constitutes the major activity of this theatrical group. On the basis of careful study T. A. P. recommends to Cap and Dagger a program of plays to be produced, with suggestions for production manager and director for each show. Placing emphasis on the proper channeling of theatrical energies at Bucknell Theta Alpha Phi heartily endorses and furthers the work of the Little Theatre Committee.

German

The Foreign Language Department, in addition to its standard classroom courses, offers a varied program of extra-curricular activities. These activities are designed to further the student's knowledge of the cultures and customs of the countries whose languages are being studied.

"Guten Nachmittag" might have been your greeting if you attended the German open house during the Christmas season. At this time, typical German music was presented to the guests. The "Deuthces Haus" sponsors, among its other activities, a conversational hour which is held twice a week. Here students gather to learn the German language through practice.

Another group connected with the German Department is DELTA PHI ALPHA, the National Honorary German Fraternity. Its purpose is to "understand and study the German language, culture, and people." In addition to its monthly meetings, the group recently sponsored a folk-dance party in Tustin Gymnasium and a trip to the Pennsylvania Dutch region.

French

"La Maison Francaise" houses eleven girls who are majoring in French. In living together, these girls learn to speak French more accurately by using it in their daily activities. Together with other interested French students, these girls gather in the French House three times a week for conversation. At these meetings, only French is spoken. Sometimes the group plays language games, while, at other times, it listens to recordings or reads French magazines and newspapers. This type of association aids the student in gaining an up-to-date knowledge of the language, the people, and the customs of the country he is studying.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS, the French Honorary organization, meets once a month. It is composed of students who have achieved notable records in their study of the language and who are interested in furthering their knowledge of French culture.

Spanish

Similar to the French and German Houses, "La Casa Espanola" sponsors numerous activities contributive to the student's proficiency in Spanish, chief among these being its conversation hours. At these informal gatherings, students speak entirely in Spanish, thus furthering by practice their fluency in the language. In addition, they participate in language games, listen to the rhythms of South America's rhumbas and tangoes, and engage in a variety of activities designed to heighten their linguistic abilities through association and practice.

SIGMA DELTA PI, National Honorary Spanish Fraternity, is open to those Spanish students interested in furthering their study of the language, customs, and cultures of ancient and modern Spain, Mexico, and South American countries. Further knowledge of these lands can be acquired by the student who enters the Spanish Department's courses in Spanish Literature.

PI MU EPSILON, National Honorary Mathematics Fraternity

Mathematics and Astronomy

The Mathematics Department prepares the student for work in many fields which require mathematics as a part or whole of his training. Preparation is available for entrance into teaching mathematics or into statistics, finance, investment, and numerous other fields.

The purposes of the study of mathematics are to give facility in dealing with problems of the modern world of science and to give ability in analyzing data and in deducing from them safe and proper conclusions.

PI MU EPSILON, the National Mathematics Honorary Fraternity, was instituted at Bucknell in 1925. Its foremost objectives are the encouragement of scholarship and the stimulation of interest in the field of mathematics. Among its requirements for admission is a ninety per cent average in mathematics through integral calculus and an eighty-five per cent general average.

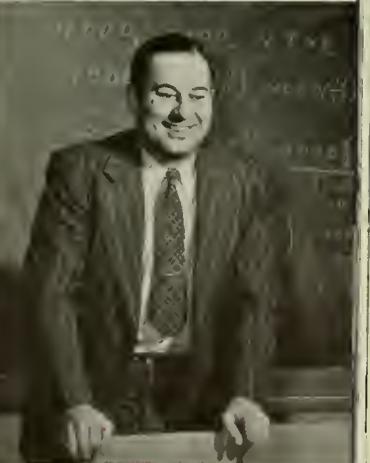

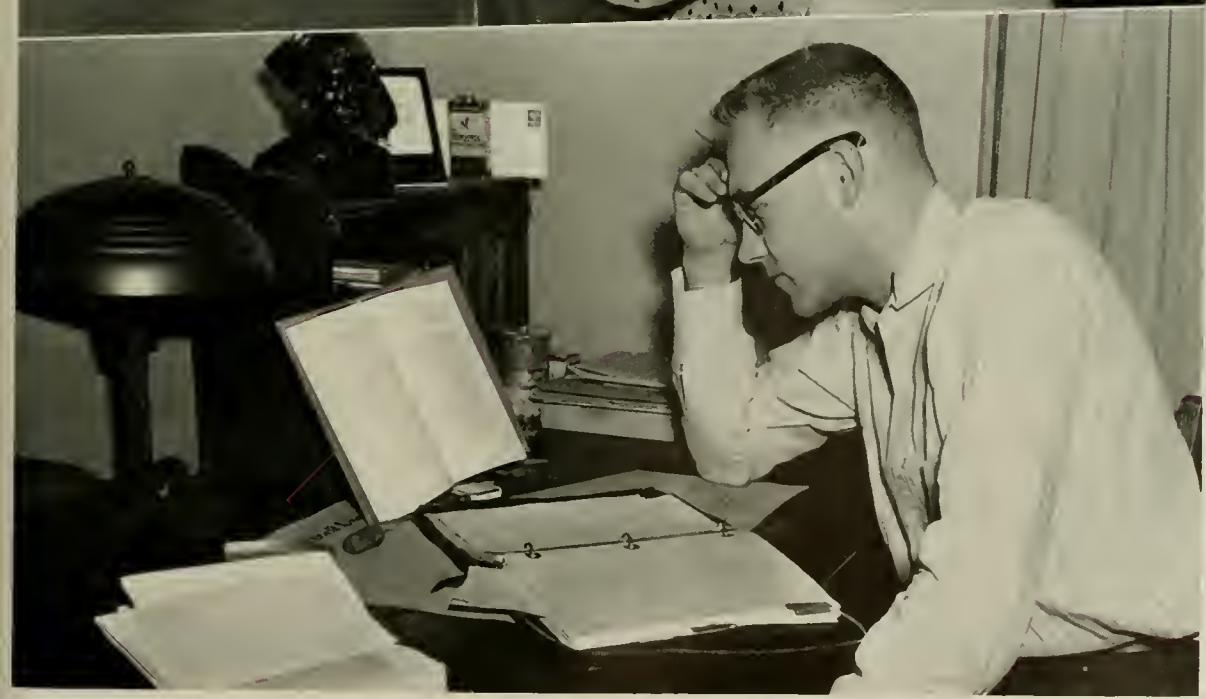

Astronomy comprises a study of the celestial bodies surrounding the earth—the sun, moon, solar systems, the earth and its motion—and entails the utilization of the full equipment of the observatory.

Men's Glee Club

Possibly the best-known representatives of Bucknell's busy music department are the seventy-five members of the Men's Glee Club. Careful managerial planning and rigorous rehearsal bore fruit in the form of a sixteen-concert tour between semesters in the Philadelphia-New York City area, which included a Mutual Network broadcast. Students and nearby townspeople were also privileged to hear Dr. Cook's skillful interpretations of a wide variety of religious and secular music in a series of more than thirty appearances in and around Lewisburg.

Arrangements for concerts were handled by manager Jack Williams and assistant manager Bill Miller. The library was taken care of by Tom Motheral, and publicity was in the hands of Ken Stauffer. Accompaniment was by Jack Conley.

Born of the club two years ago, the male quartet has achieved maturity in its own right. In addition to their function as a regular feature of the Glee Club concerts, the four vocal experts have blended their voices before many alumni club meetings and other gatherings in the vicinity.

Women's Glee Club

Another excellent record has been chalked up this year by the Women's Glee Club. Directed by Professor Roderick O. Williams, Bucknell's seventy ladies of song have spent long hours in the development of an extensive and varied repertoire and have greatly expanded the scope of their activities. A tour in early February took the girls through Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore, and Washington, where they made many appearances in person and over the air. The club was kept busy in Lewisburg with chapel concerts, Lenten services, May Day exercises, and other performances. Joint concerts with the symphony orchestra were an outstanding feature of their schedule.

Credit for the smooth handling of business and other affairs goes to manager Helen Gloisten, secretary Janet Woods, treasurer Nancy Tatnall, and librarian Dorris Philby.

The right combination of the club's best voices yielded the sextet, which pleased the eyes and ears of many audiences in this vicinity. Typifying the unusual novelty selections in this group's repertoire were several calypso tunes with guitar accompaniment.

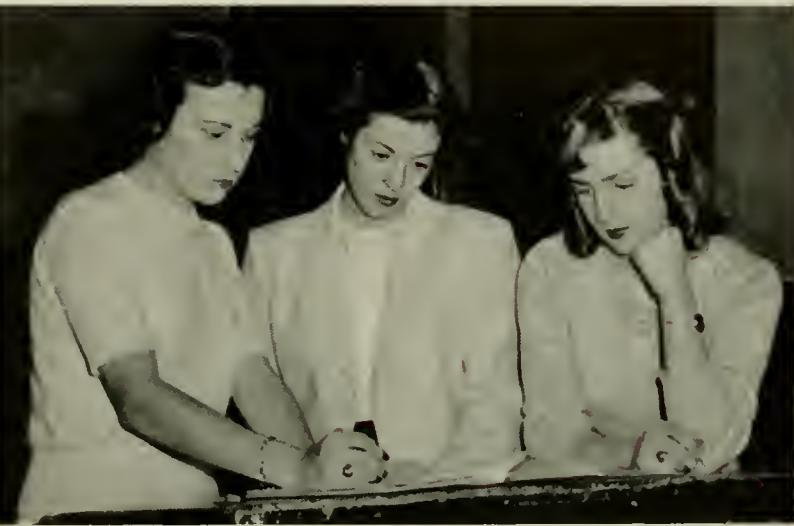

Quietly working behind the spectacular dazzle of the glamorous extracurricular activities, Dr. Cook and his staff have succeeded in establishing a fully accredited music curriculum. This year saw the initiation of a program whereby students may receive bachelor's degrees in music and music education. This step represents an academic milestone in the growth of the music department, and points toward bigger and better achievements in the future.

The Music Department makes a weekly broadcast.

Among the many innovations springing forth from the music department this year was its very successful radio series, The Bucknell Concert Hall. Through the facilities of WKOK, thousands of listeners in central Pennsylvania were treated every Thursday afternoon to concerts by nearly every student and faculty musical organization and many soloists.

The mixed chorus was far from being left behind in this year's musical parade of progress. The usual Christmas performance of Handel's "Messiah" in Davis Gymnasium was supplemented by a broadcast over WCNR, for which Dr. Cook's one-hundred voice aggregation of students and townspeople, as well as the symphony orchestra, traveled to Bloomsburg on December 11. In early Spring, this same organization again convened to present Bach's

"St. Matthew Passion". Directed this time by Professor William D. McRae, the chorus sang both in Sunbury and on campus.

A new high in musical and spectacular value was reached this year by the Bucknell University Band, under the baton of Mr. Robert E. Beckman. Football fans were enthralled by the intricate formations and tricky steps executed by the sixty-piece organization to the stirring strains of their martial tempos. Electrified hats enabled them to perform multi-colored miracles at night while Jackie Smith and Anne Cassell twirled their flaming batons. The band's post-season activity included a mid-March concert, a May Day appearance, and several outdoor evening concerts in the Spring. A medley of Bucknell tunes, recorded by the concert band, has been well received by the public.

MU PHI EPSILON, National Honorary Musical Sorority

The membership of MU PHI EPSILON, the National Professional Music Sorority, is composed of women students who meet the requirements of high scholarship and enrollment in courses of theoretical and practical music. The group sponsors the inter-sorority song contest every other year, and their meetings are divided equally between business and program. Their large second semester pledge class assisted in the presentation of their annual open program meeting.

A successful season including many kinds of assignments and numerous programs of its own has just been concluded by the Bucknell University Symphony Orchestra. In addition to playing for official school functions, Mr. Miller's performers accompanied the mixed chorus in the presentations of the "Messiah" and "St. Matthew Passion", and also appeared in joint concerts with the Women's Glee Club and the Chapel Choir. The University Players' production of "The Vagabond King" was supported from the pit by the same group, which took bows all its own at other times for concerts over WKOK and in Bloomsburg.

Philosophy, Psychology, Religion, and Art

Philosophy Club

Philosophy

The Philosophy Department has added three new courses to its curriculum this year. The seminars on Whitehead's philosophy, on the philosophy of history, and on American philosophy have emanated from a definite and welcome increase of interest among Bucknell students.

The renewal of this interest concerning various philosophical questions has not only brought the students a greater opportunity to study and understand the complexities of philosophy but has also been one of the primary factors responsible for the reorganization of the Philosophy Club, which had not been functioning during the past few years.

In recent years the department has initiated the University Course. Theoretically, the University Course does not belong to any single department, for it is an inter-departmental course uniting the various branches of study into a unified whole. It is listed under the Philosophy Department because it is primarily of philosophical substance and uses philosophy as a link in relating the student's major courses of study. Professor Warren is the co-ordinator and is in immediate charge of the seminar, one of the forward advances of our school in the field of liberal education.

Psychology

The psychology major is required to take at least one course in each of the five major areas into which the department is divided. These areas are genetic, experimental-theoretical, clinical-measurement, psychodynamics, and applied-industrial.

Broadening the scope of its activities, the department has lately incorporated several original courses such as Psychology of Maturity and Psychology of Personality in its already extensive curriculum.

Members of the department have received recognition for work done in many of the recent psychological journals. Outstanding work that has been recorded recently includes experiments on the effects of benzedrine and glutamic acid on animal systems, rat hoarding behavior, and research in the field of educational psychology.

The Psychology Club sponsors research projects, shows and discusses educational movies, visits nearby institutions, and keeps up-to-date with the most recent trends in the field. To become an active member, a student must conduct an original experiment and give a report to the group.

Kappa Chi Lambda, Professional Religious Fraternity

Religion

Bucknell University was founded over a century ago by a group of Christian men and women. Today its religious heritage plays a significant part on the campus.

According to the University Bulletin, "Courses in Religion are planned to provide a general cultural education for laymen, training for lay workers, and pre-professional training for ministerial students."

The efforts of the Religion department are not confined to the classroom. Weekly chapel services, held in the Methodist church, are planned by a joint committee of faculty and students. These services carry on, in part, the religious tradition of the University. The well-trained chapel choir, composed of a selected group of mixed voices, forms a major part of the Chapel programs and provides for the expression of sacred music.

The most extensive religious organization on campus is the Christian Association, whose busy office is the center of numerous and varied activities. Reams of literature are sent from East Wing concerning Student Church, Freshman Firesides, and other news pertinent to the C. A.'s activities.

These activities are directed by the C. A.'s bicameral government which includes the Executive Cabinet of twelve students elected by an all-school vote, and the Advisory Council composed of members of the faculty, administration, and pastor's groups. Annual concerns of the Christian Association include: the World Student Service Fund drive, the Burma-Bucknell Weekend, and conferences at Cowan. The most outstanding feature of the C. A. program is Religion-in-Life Week, which receives campus-wide emphasis. The intensified program of the Christian Association carries out one of its objectives adequately: "to afford opportunity for worship, study, and action."

Art

Under the supervision of Professor Gummo, the Art Department offers the interested student a varied curriculum. Art Lab is crowded each afternoon with students painting and doing charcoal drawings. At 10, every Tuesday and Thursday morning in the Literature Auditorium many students, not just art majors, observe the parade of slides representing the History of Art. The History of Sculpture and Painting classes, like the one in Contemporary Art, requires a lengthy scrapbook which includes representative illustrations of each artist with the students analysis of each plate. Instruction in pictorial composition and play production is also offered for art credit.

Bruce Mitchell, our artist in residence, opens his workshop to all students and friends. Mr. Mitchell is responsible for planning the outside exhibits held throughout the year in Roberts Hall. He arranges for the personal appearances and painting demonstrations by leading artists. During the past year, such prominent artists as Charles Burchfield, Joe Jones, and Hubert Davis gave presentations of their painting technique.

Football

It is said, "All things come to those who wait." And, truly so, one of the finest football teams ever to be produced at Bucknell came in 1949 to those who had waited patiently, sometimes impatiently, throughout dismal freshman, sophomore, and junior grid seasons. For the seven seniors on the squad: guard Bob Bucher, tackle Don Davidson, center Bob Ervin, end Charlie Gruneberg, quarterback Jim Hoover, tackle Len Kiersarsky, and fullback Ed Stee; the wait was particularly worthwhile, as they took turns game-captaining the Bisons to six wins and two losses, each loss by the slim margin of one point.

As the final second ticked off on the scoreboard clock, the records showed that the Herd had compiled one of the greatest offensive reports in Bucknell history. Using the two-platoon substitution system and the split-T formation for the first time, Head Coach Harry Lawrence's charges rolled up 215 points to the opponents' 96, breaking a Bucknell scoring record of 205 points which had stood since 1929. Further, the Bisons ranked among the offensive and defensive leaders in the East. Offensively, they placed fifth in total offense with 3013 yards and fifth in total rushing with 1977 yards. Defensively, they niggardly held their opponents to 1757 total yards and 896 yards along the ground to rank fourth and third, respectively.

Sparking the offensive was left halfback Jim "Smokey" Ostendarp whose elusive running earned him 828 yards in 120 tries and got him ten touchdowns; all of which ranked him third among the East's ball carriers and gave him a second-team berth on the All-Pennsylvania team.

The 1949 season was thrill-packed for Bison rooters. Each game provided spectacular action that will live in the memory of every witness. One can see it now . . . Leading 7-0 in their first home game in 11 years, the Bisons hurl back N. Y. U. with a tremendous fourth-period goal-line stand, and seconds later "Smokey" Ostendarp races 88 yards only to be brought down six feet from Violet pay-dirt . . . Guard Doug Light tears through the Delaware line in the second quarter and tackles star halfback Larry O'Toole so viciously that the Blue Hen does a somersault and cannot finish the game . . . Tackle Don Davidson rips into the W. & J. end zone in the first period and blocks "Deacon" Dan Towler's punt for a safety, putting Bucknell in front, 9-0 . . . End Joe Gallagher clutches quarterback Jim Hoover's 15-yard aerial on the Muhlenberg 35-yard line in the second quarter and laterals to halfback Dick Hetsko, who, aided by Karl Heininger's fine block, goes all the way to score, breaking a 20-year B. U. scoring mark of 205 points.

And those spirited Bucknellians who traveled with the team will not soon forget . . . In the first period under the lights at Temple, quarterback Tom Dean laterals to halfback Bob Albert, who hits end Joe Gallagher with a 34-yard pass to tie the game, 7-7 . . . Coach Harry Lawrence, immediately after the Buffalo victory, goes to the middle of the gridiron and fulfills a pre-game promise by burning the movies of the 1948 Buffalo debacle . . . Time has run out and Gettysburg has just tied B. U., 33-33, with a ten-second desperation pass. Ronnie Fitzkee calmly boots the game-winning point and sends the partisan stands into an uproar . . . Halfback Van Johnson intercepts a Lafayette aerial on the first play from scrimmage in the second half and returns it 55 yards to the Leopards' five-yard line, setting up Bob Albert's game-winning score.

The variety of thrills in 1949 left nothing to be desired. A team which had been listed by pre-season forecasters as an underdog in every game had so reversed predictions that Bill Stern, foremost sports broadcaster, proclaimed Bucknell "one of the most improved teams in the nation."

Soccer

Capably coached by Joe Diblin, the Booters maintained their mastery of the Southwestern District of the Middle Atlantic League by gaining the title for the third consecutive year. To do so, the 1949 "Bouncing Bunnies" scored five league victories, climaxed by a thrilling 1-0 overtime win against a strong Franklin and Marshall team.

Spearheaded by Captain Art Raynor and sparked by stellar seniors: Tom Childs, Dick Freed, Dan Fuller, Rusty Keith, Marlin Machamer, Cliff Remer, and Pete Weidenbacher; the soccermen entered the Middle Atlantic League title playoff at Swarthmore on November 23 as defending champions with a record of 11 consecutive league victories.

However, being away from home proved a handicap, and, though the Bisons scored two goals in the final quarter to tie the score, the Little Quakers pulled the game out of the fire, 3-2, in two overtime periods. The only other losses suffered by the Herd came against non-league teams.

Art Raynor, who lead the squad in scoring for the second consecutive year with six tallies, and Dan Fuller, whose mighty toe frequently booted the opposition back to its own goal, finished their outstanding careers by being named to the All League Team; while Tom Childs had the unique distinction of being the only senior to complete four years of varsity competition.

Wrestling

Beating four out of six opponents, the grapplers set one of the best records since the introduction of intercollegiate wrestling at Bucknell in 1944.

Led by co-captain-seniors, John Rickard and George Stanton, the matmen ended the year fourth among eight teams at the Middle Atlantic tourney. The Herd won two second and two third place spots. Marshall Goulding lost in the 121-pound final, and Stanton lost the 145 final on a referee's decision. Wendell Stainsby and Nelson Woolcock took third in the 136 and 175-pound weights, respectively.

Following each other in weight class, Stainsby and Stanton provided a one-two punch that was upset only once in 12 dual meets over two years. Stainsby has won all 12 of his regular season bouts, and Stanton, unbeaten this year, lost just one last season.

Six regulars, including Stainsby, will be on tap next year when the Middle Atlantic Meet comes to B. U. in March.

Basketball

Varsity basketball in 1949-50 suffered from an acute case of growing pains. Having a lineup that varied from three to five sophomores, the Bisons faced a schedule that included some of the basketball powers of the East: Rutgers, Muhlenberg, Lafayette, Navy, and Rhode Island State.

As expected, Coach Jack Guy's youthful squad showed its general inexperience and need for development, playing brilliantly for a time and then slumping suddenly. But in their moments of brilliance, they displayed what may be expected of them next year, for never did they lack a scoring punch.

Playing under a new system introduced this year, the Bisons placed emphasis on speed. The result was a wide-open, free-scoring brand of ball that thrilled spectators.

Leading the squad in scoring were sophomores Joe Gallagher and Don Strassner, who seemingly alternated as high scorer each game. Gallagher, the more consistent scorer, hit the cords at a better than 17-point average. Strassner followed closely with a 15-point average, but his game scores varied greatly. Gallagher's 366 points set a new B. U. scoring mark.

The greatest obstacle the team had to overcome was a consistently slow start. This was evidenced by the Muhlenberg and Rhode Island games, which the Bisons lost after thrilling last-half rallies. Trailing by 18 points at the half in the first Muhlenberg game, the Herd proceeded to outscore the Mules in what proved to be the highest scoring contest in Davis Gym history, the Mules winning, 92-80. Later, in the Rhode Island encounter, the Bisons wrote the same script. The Staters rolled up a 20-point lead by halftime; then, once again, the squad got "hot," outscoring the Rams before losing, 88-78. However, the high point of the year came when they beat F. & M., 98-54, smashing the Davis Gym individual team-scoring record.

For spectacular performance, Don Strassner's one-man exhibition in the second Gettysburg tilt topped them all. With the Bullets leading 42-39 in the third period, "Bucky" amazed the home crowd by tossing in, from all angles, six baskets and two foul shots to put the Herd in front 53-51 before another Bison player scored.

In assaying the year, one point stands out. The team got better as the season aged. It is, therefore, believed that the experience gained by the sophomores will help iron out for the next year the rough spots that counted so heavily against them this season.

Freshman Basketball

Like all Bucknell post-war freshman athletics, basketball compiled one of the most successful team records. While the "Big Brothers" on the varsity absorbed frequent defeat, the Frosh quintet vanquished one opponent after another, boasting, at one time, a win streak of five straight contests.

Three stalwarts, from whom much is expected when they move into the varsity next season, paced the Frosh. Joe Booth, who compiled a 17-point average, was the scoring leader for most of the year. Bill Strella, whose passing and shooting were spectacular, was the playmaker and sparkplug, while Ronnie Reichman, who averaged 14 points, was front man in Coach Bill Lane's fast-break system.

Hampered by a lack of height, the Frosh used their fast-driving game to cut down the opponents. Highlighting the year was the Navy tilt at Annapolis. Trailing through most of the tilt, the unbeaten Plebes had to take the Herd into overtime to win, 66-63. A 62-56 victory over pesky Gettysburg earlier in the year also added to the Freshmen's success.

Track

"A glad start and a sad end," summarizes the 1949 track season. First competition came at the Penn Relays in April. Coach Bus Blum's men placed third in the College Mile Relay and fifth in the Middle Atlantic States Championship.

Next, in a triangle meet at home, the squad won out with 65½ points to Gettysburg's 54 and Juniata's 34. Away, the Herd beat Muhlenberg, 65-61. It was whisker-close, though. The winning points were registered when Cappy Walsh's broad jump won second place by a toenail (¼").

However, good things must end. At home, the team lost to Dickinson, 66-60; its first loss in seven meets covering three years. The trackmen then bowed out with one point in the Mid-Atlantic meet.

They soar through the air . . . . . with the greatest of ease.

They're off on the 220-yard dash, and the Gettysburg man at the extreme right is just 22.6 seconds from victory over Bucknell and Juniata.

Intramurals

Men's physical education at Bucknell goes beyond the gym classes in which each student must participate during his first two years. It touches him all his undergraduate days through the highly integrated intramural program, which recently added handball to its 11 other events, leaving almost no athletic ability without means of expression.

This year, Lambda Chi, last year's champions, forged to the top of the intramural All-Year Trophy race with championships in three of the first five events. Though losing tennis to Temporary Dorm, LCA won the cup, because cups go only to fraternities. Following this, the Lambda Chis defeated Kappa Sigma in the finals of both handball and soccer, and won the cross-country race before KS ended their monopoly on cups by taking the wrestling title.

At the time of the publication of this book, five events remained to be played, and the Trophy race was far from being decided. The leading teams were: LCA with  $242\frac{1}{2}$  points, Kappa Sigma—215, Sigma Alpha Epsilon— $202\frac{1}{2}$ , and Kappa Delta Rho— $183\frac{1}{2}$ .

Ski Club

"Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow," sang the members of the Ski Club. But it didn't snow, and that's the Ski Club story.

The weather man ignored the ardent pleas of these arctic enthusiasts and provided little opportunity for them to exercise their skills on the horizontal stilts.

The Club was directed this year by Ned Johnson, president; Dick Beitel, vice-president; Carolyn Kries, treasurer; Bobby Zaun, secretary; and Al Zecher, publicity manager.

B-Club

The organization of lettermen has not only been increasing in numbers but also in activities. This term, under Jim Hoover, president; Jim Stumbaugh, vice-president; Cappy Walsh, treasurer; and Drew Mathieson, secretary; the B-Club embarked on its most ambitious campaign in recent years.

The major purpose of the Club is raising funds to buy varsity sweaters for each new letter winner. Toward this end, the B-men sponsored a basketball game in Davis Gym between the barnstorming Philadelphia Eagle and Pittsburgh Steeler gridmen. Preceding that tilt was a contest between the varsity footballers and the faculty, lead by Dean Musser. Besides this event, the Club sold programs at the basketball games, the wrestling matches, and the intramural wrestling and boxing meets. Finally, with the Booster Club, a varsity dance was held.

Cheerleaders and Booster Club

It was a year of increased activity for both the cheerleading squad and the Booster Club. Beside pep rallies, complete with band, bonfire, cheerleaders, and players preceding all home football games; the groups sponsored team send-offs at eight o'clock in the morning in front of the Bison restaurant.

Under the captaincy of Bud Norton, the cheering squad vastly increased in numbers. Veterans Marnie Brown, Don Koehler, Ed McComsey, Wanda Sullivan, Bob Woolhouse, and Lorry Yaufman were joined by new-comers: "Smiley" Cappel, Nancy Carter, Willene "Willy" Edwards, John Harvey, Bob Horn, Lynn Naugle, Chuck Porter, and Bobby Roemer.

The Booster Club, with Bud as president and Wanda as secretary, consisted of the Cheerleaders and one representative from each fraternity and sorority.

With both groups doing the planning, pre-game stunts were staged before each grid contest through the cooperation of a spirited freshman class. Such spectacles as a funnel of dink-wearing frosh, leading from the Bisons' locker room to the bench, through which the players ran on entering the field; followed by the execution of a snake dance; and climaxed by freshman cheering—all added to the Rah Rah atmosphere of the pigskin tilts.

The primary project of the Booster Club for the year was a college membership drive, featuring music and announcements over a public address system stationed on the library steps. The drive enabled the Club to purchase the new "Bucky the Bison" costume.

Women's Sports

The Women's Athletic Association is organized to provide the women of Bucknell with an opportunity to participate in social recreation and to develop skills in various sports and activities. The W. A. A. board, elected by the students, acts as an executive body to organize and coordinate the activities of the association.

Throughout the year the Physical Education Department witnessed a series of interclass and intergroup tournaments including hockey, volleyball, basketball, and softball. Those skilled in individual sports competed in tennis, archery, badminton, and golf.

Play Days formed an important part of the athletic program this year. On these occasions girls from neighboring colleges met to match their skills in the various sports. Bucknell entertained women hockey players from Penn State, Dickinson, and Juniata colleges in November. After a strenuous afternoon of hockey, the girls relaxed and socialized over cocoa and sandwiches in Hunt Rec Room. Return Play Days were sponsored by Penn State and Lycoming Colleges where Bucknell was well represented.

Physical Science

Chemistry

There are two major groups whose purpose it is to further the interests of chemistry students. The American Chemical Society is the first of these. Among its activities, the Society presents relevant films and invites professional chemists to its meetings to discuss current chemical trends in the professional world. The second of these organizations is Alpha Chi Sigma, the National Professional Chemical Fraternity. Students majoring in chemistry and having completed three semesters in the field are eligible for membership.

Geography and Geology

The field of geography constitutes a study of the natural and cultural elements of the earth, examining and comparing the characteristics and products of different land areas. To visualize the material presented in the lectures, the geography students work extensively with maps and, to supplement their classroom work, make frequent field-trips in the vicinity to study their topics firsthand.

In the study of geology, the multifarious aspects of the earth's structure are examined. The lectures and classroom work are concerned largely with land formation, and to clarify his study by contact, the student of geology, as in geography, makes numerous field trips.

The products of different land areas are compared.

Physics

The Physics Department has the task of aiding the student in co-ordinating textbook theory and practical application. Since the last war, about thirty students have been graduated from Bucknell with Physics as their major. They have either obtained positions in government and industry or continued their studies toward higher degrees.

Physics is a profession in its own right, but the elementary courses are necessary prerequisites for many other fields. Among those students who visit the physics department before graduation are engineers, chemists, biologists, and interested liberal arts students.

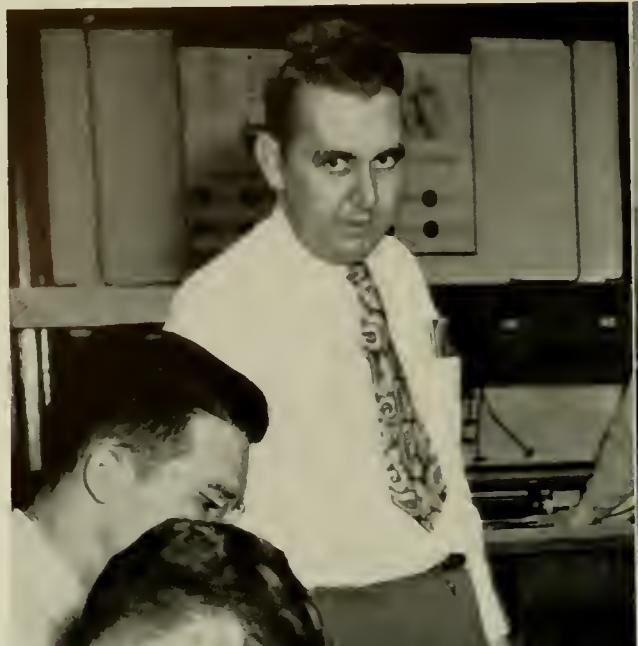

The Bucknell chapter of SIGMA PI SIGMA, the National Physics Honorary, was installed in 1948. The purpose of this organization is to recognize and reward high scholarship in the field of Physics.

Women's Student Government Association

The Women's Student Government Association is composed of a House of Representatives, a Senate, and an Honor Council. Its members, who are elected by the women students at Bucknell, operate on the honor system in setting and maintaining the standards of Bucknell women. The legislative power of the WSGA lies in the House of Representatives which considers students' suggestions in preparing drafts of bills. For final confirmation, these proposed bills are later submitted to the Senate, the executive branch of the Government. The Senate makes proposals to be voted on by the Association, is representative of the Association in its relations with the faculty and the administration, and is the final authority in all of the Association's issues of jurisdiction. The judicial branch of the WSGA is the Honor Council which acts as a court of appeals concerning violations of regulations.

The Student-Faculty Congress is the mediative organization uniting the efforts of the administration, faculty, and students in directing student life at Bucknell. The supreme executive instrument of government, the Congress determines the privileges, restrictions, and general standards applied to the student. A student and a faculty member represent each of the supervisory organizations at Bucknell.

The Student-Faculty Congress represents Bucknell in the National Students' Association, determines the annual student budget for Bucknell, and among its other activities, endorses the annual WSSF drive. With the Women's Student Government Association, the Student-Faculty Congress represents the democratic organization of student government at Bucknell. The method it employs in electing its members, the procedure it follows in its meetings and in its methods of dealing with problems of government, and its overall organizational structure are conducive to creating in the Student-Faculty Congress an adequate and democratic instrument of government.

ALPHA KAPPA DELTA, National Honorary Sociology Fraternity

Sociology

The Sociology Department at Bucknell has attempted to make the consideration of sociology an important part of the student's life and thought. The course of study includes most of the aspects of sociology which, being a comparatively new field, offers many opportunities for those who wish to pursue it as a career.

The Department has divided its course of study into three major sub-divisions: Social Organization, Social Change, and Disorganization, and Sociological Theory and Methods of Research. Outstanding among courses of study are Marriage and the Family, Minority Groups, Criminology, Instruction to Social Work, Social Psychology, and the History of Sociological Research.

For the purpose of stimulating interest in the field of sociology, the Sociology Club was founded. Many noted sociologists speak before the group, and in addition to its guest speaker program, the club provides for special committees which deal with various phases of sociology. These phases include minority groups and sociological theory. The club is open to all students.

The Sociology National Honorary Fraternity, ALPHA KAPPA DELTA, has as its purpose the encouragement of interest in sociology and social research. Requirements for membership include an over-all B average.

PERSONALITIES

as selected by

Katherine Cornell

The suicide scene from Shakespeare's Antony and Cleopatra

HERE are the Bucknell personalities as selected by one of the leading ladies of the American theater, Miss Katherine Cornell.

In preparing this feature, our search for qualities desirable in our fellow students led to the writings of the Bard of the Avon himself. We found he had some flattering things to say about some of his characters, and we felt they could be well said of members of the graduating class. Once twelve quotations were chosen, we gave them to the seniors and asked them to vote for that classmate they thought best fitted each quotation. The two persons receiving the highest number of votes for each quotation were picked for a final balloting.

It was then natural that we asked Miss Cornell, a leading Shakespearian thespian, to make the final decision. She generously complied, and her choice follows.

With Godfrey Tearle as Antony

Eleanor Leiper

"Thou art wise as thou are beautiful."

Mary Ann Shimer

"Thy smiles become thee well; therefore in my presence still smile."

Charles Gruneberg

"Exceeding pleasant, so merry and gamesome he is call'd."

John Marcinek

"He is complete in feature and in mind with all good grace to grace a gentleman."

Doris Wellenkamp

"Her voice was ever soft, gentle, an excellent thing in woman."

Margaret Anderson

"More fairer than fair, beautiful than beauteous, truer than truth itself."

David Grimm

"His eye begets occasion for his wit which his fair tongue delivers in such apt and gracious words."

Irving Williams

"An honest, willing, kind fellow."

Dorothy Yarnall

"Possess'd with such a gentle sovereign grace, Of such enchanting presence and discourse."

Sara Angle

"She enlargeth her mirth so far."

Jack Bozarth

"A serving man, proud of heart and of mind."

Donald Davidson

"He sits high in all the people's hearts."

SORORITIES AND FRATERNITIES

Panhellenic Council

The integration of sorority politics is achieved through Panhellenic Council, which is composed of a junior and senior delegate from each of the nine sorority groups on the Bucknell campus. The main purpose of the organization is to provide a medium through which fraternity women may work together to unify the interests of the women students.

The beginning of each school year finds "Pan-Hell" at its busiest, when the smooth functioning of rush-week is uppermost in the mind of every Greek. The co-operation among sororities continues during the year through the efforts of Panhellenic Council to further common interests, and to promote consistency of operation among all Greek chapters. Panhellenic maintains a scholarship fund which is awarded annually to one or more women students who meet the necessary qualifications. A scholarship cup is also awarded annually to the group attaining the highest all-year scholastic average.

Pledge dances, inter-sorority sports, benefits, picnics, scholarship funds, spring banquets, Christmas parties for underprivileged children, and alumni and patroness teas are among the many activities on a sorority's calendar for the school year.

Interfraternity Council

The Interfraternity Council is composed of a senior and junior representative from each of the fraternities. The council functions as a co-ordinating unit for fraternities and is concerned mainly with rushing rules, scholarship standings, and the social activities of the fraternities.

The first fraternity was founded at Bucknell in 1855 and since that time twelve more have been added to the list. Fraternities have become an important part in Bucknell's academic and social life and they strive to develop men along those lines. The formation of American college fraternities was brought about because their founders felt and realized the value of the association of men of like ideals.

The rushing season in the fall of the year is the first thing on the fraternities' agenda. Smokers, dinner dates, and "bull" sessions are typical during that period. Dances, open houses, luncheons, and teas fill the social calendar throughout the year and culminate with the well known House Party Weekend with picnics at Half-Way. The intramural program finds the fraternities striving throughout the year to accumulate enough points to win the All-Year trophy.

Bucknell Independent Students' Association

The Bucknell Independent Students' Association is a new organization on campus. The need has long been seen for some way in which those students who are not affiliated with a fraternity or sorority could be given an organized outlet for academic, athletic, and social activities. BISA was the answer to this problem.

The independent students on this campus represent about fifty per cent of the entire student body. Naturally, the fraternities and sororities cannot accommodate everyone on campus, and still others, for one reason or another, do not choose to join these organizations. Prior to the time that BISA was activated, these students had very little political voice at Bucknell; there were very few ways in which they could participate in intramural athletics; and many dances and other social activities were closed to them. BISA has already remedied many of these defects, and is taking steps to provide many more services for the benefit of the independent students, and for the school itself.

BISA is not a fraternity, nor is it a substitute for one. True, one of its prime purposes is to create fellowship among the students, the same as the fraternities' aim, but in BISA there is no compulsion to attend meetings or any other activity, nor is there any initiation. BISA is inexpensive. The dues are one dollar per semester, and even this can be paid in installments.

BISA, working in cooperation with the fraternities and sororities, can help Bucknell to have a well organized student body. It is a necessary and important part of campus life. In the next few years it promises to become the traditional organization for independent students.

We Sweat . . .

For many, self-support is a necessary and integral part of college life. As education becomes more and more a privilege for any who is capable and desirous, the student working his way through college becomes an increasingly familiar sight. In addition to the number of employment opportunities provided by the university are those unearthed by the individual's initiative.

Bucknell offers a large selection of part-time jobs. The men's and women's dining halls account for a large part of student employment. Many students work as waitresses or waiters,

. . . and Mary must care for her "precious lambs" before they go to work.

They take . . .

But the soiled china requires the biggest crew of all.

And there are those who work for pros . . .

But it's the waiters and waitresses who are seen the most.

... Yes, the receptionist has her problems too!

... and Strain

Some students work in the Bison, the Sweet Shop, and in stores and restaurants downtown. A few are campus representatives or salesmen for nationally advertised products. Others pick up extra dollars typing themes, tutoring, and baby-sitting. These are just a few of the many jobs which aid the student in working his way through college.

Working one's way wholly or partly through college can contribute a great deal to the individual's development. Although the work may be in part burdensome, the experience of working with fellow students, with teachers, and with persons not associated with the university supplies an important step in the direction of independence and self-sufficiency.

And could we ever forget the Bison?

WHERE WE LIVE

The four-in-hand . . .

. . . and the cupid's bow.

The gab-fest . . .

. . . and the song-fest.

The Deer and the Antelope Play . . .

East Wing, West Wing, Hunt, Harris, or the houses—no matter where you live at Bucknell, the Bucknell way of life is yours. There's always dating with its hours of preparation, anticipation, and realization. There's always studying with its brief moments of pain and suffering. And there's always relaxation with its clowning, kidding, and capering. But whatever there is, it's part of Bucknell.

Bull sessions, song fests, and after-date dissections—these are the things to be found in any dormitory, large or small. In the dorms, too, the weightiest issues of life—what to do about profs and Q. C.'s, how to get a date with that special person, and whether or not the Bison has better hamburgers than Pardoe's—are resolved. And here fraternity songs, some naughty, some nice, often echo from the rafters—even during quiet hours.

There are parties, too—most of them impromptu affairs with cokes and hamburgers hastily run in from Pardoe's or the Bison and with entertainment provided by local talent. And, of course, there's a little studying, too. But even studying is punctuated with wise-cracks, laughter, and midnight snacks.

Life at Bucknell does not center solely within the dormitories. The commuters, from whose midst the members of Chi Chi come, are also an integral part of life on campus, while Bucknell Village, with its kiddy cars and diaper-hung wash-lines is a relatively new but very real part of life at Bucknell.

The nude look . . .

. . . and the root beer crowd.

The blowhard . . .

The grapplers . . .

The cronies . . .

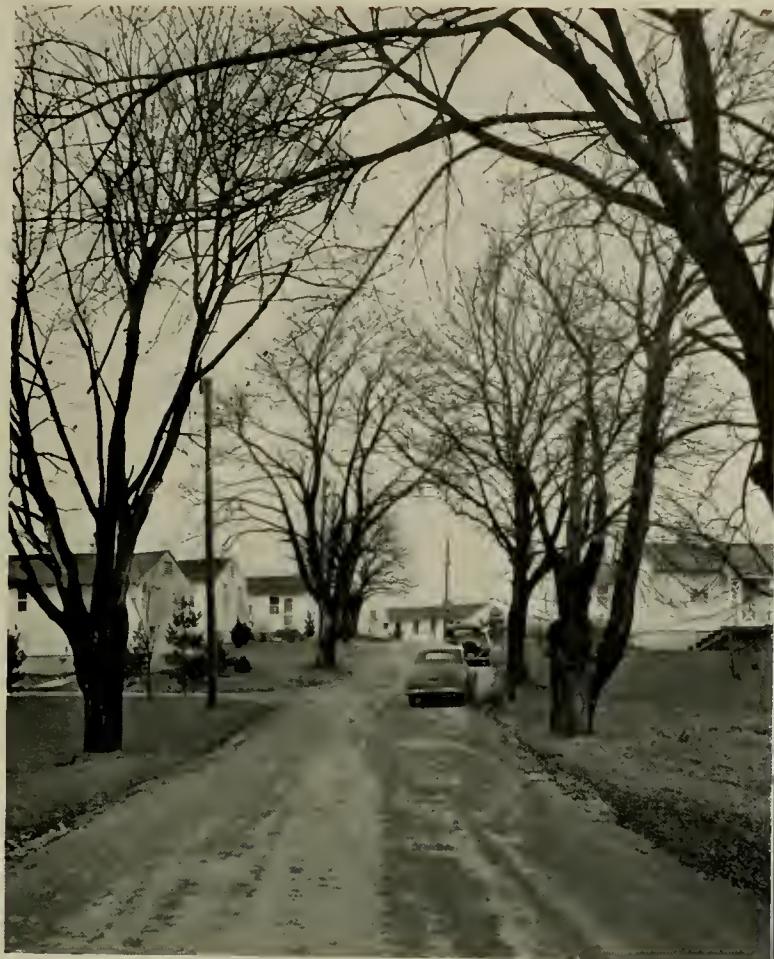

The gourmets . . .

The students . . .

. . . and the girl back home.

The married vets have their Village home . . .

. . . and then that phone keeps her on the run.

This is the way we wash our clothes

Here the Chi Chis play canasta.

WHEN WE PLAY

Johnny Long

Big Dances

Among the many memorable experiences of our four years at Bucknell are the class dances.

Shown on these pages are a few of the big name bands to whose mellow strains a host of the seniors and other Bucknellians will recall dancing away many a happy evening. Claude Thornhill, Elliot Lawrence, Duke Ellington, and Ray McKinley are a few of the names that come to mind. There is a bigness about an all-college dance—dancing to a big name band, the choosing of a queen—that lends to it an excitement above the other social activities of the school.

We hope, in presenting this two-page sketch, that now and in future years it will help to call to mind many happy memories of one of the big events in the social year—the all-college formal.

Ray McKinley

Billy Eckstine

Elliot Lawrence

Duke Ellington

B. U. Wives Club entertains at tea . . .

. . . with Mrs. Hildreth as honored guest.

Loose Ends . . .

A much bigger part of our social life than the all-college dances are the coke dates at the Sweet Shop or the Bison, a Saturday night open house at one of the frats, an afternoon at a football or baseball game, or an evening watching the basketball team racking up points. The get-togethers with the pros, the WSGA Banquet or the Faculty Stunt night, in short, a lot of things make up our social life on the old three hundred.

You will find pictures of these activities scattered all through this book, but in case we have forgotten something, here are a few more just to tie the loose ends together.

The pros entertain us . . .

. . . and we entertain the pros.

The scrap at homecoming . . .

Get off the table, Maizie.

. . . and an interested bystander.

Morning, afternoon, and evening activity centers at the Bison.

DISSENTERS AND DICTATORS

In all history new ideas in religion, politics and science have not been without honor except in their own generation. Our fathers have always killed the prophets and we have built their honored tombs. But despite the slow acceptance of new truths there are always many Nicodemuses and Zachaeuses, secretly and openly, who are receptive to new truths, many thousands who have not bowed the knee of Baal or worshipped the stupid traditions of their fathers. Every individual in his role as a dissenter has an influence and courage that is indispensable for pure and undefiled religion and democracy.

The great Divine Dissenter came not to bring peace but a sword and to die for living his courageous convictions. But in our religious philosophy, we save our life by losing it and lose it in the timorous trails of the conformist.

Dissenters and True Prophets as distinguished from crackpots and false prophets are always upsetting the cart of conservative dead wood. But their divine discontent is largely responsible for our progress. The heretic may be a thorn in the side of established religion and Church authority, but he, also, is new leaven in the growth of the Kingdom. Persecution is no answer to honest doubts, and convictions and progress are either made or lost by our treatment of the prophets. Let's not kill the forerunners of new truths without a trial, for our prejudices are a poor substitute for our power of reason.

Communists and Fascists are not true dissenters, for once in power we only have the pleasure of their abuse and liking it. Theirs is not a philosophy of rather being right than a ruler, but that of dictators without human rights. And their selection of gullible bait is a fooler to more fish than the carp and the sucker.

The lack of cultures courage and active dissent in high places allowed dictators and spiritual wickedness to come to power in Europe and Russia. It can happen here, all that is necessary is for our intelligentsia to prolong their Rip Van Winkle nap and keep on using the sleeping pills of war surplus materials and doles of a decadent democracy. To sell our birthrights of endowments and academic freedom for the war junk of a spend-thrift government, looks like poor business to a dissenter. A dissenter may not be in the money, he may have more than his share of enemies, he may be persecuted, but seeking first the Kingdom as the prime major in his life, he has the satisfaction of being more than a member of the herd, the pleasure of self respect, gratification that far exceed the prosaic pursuit of a living. All pleasantly seasoned with good humor and humility. In this old world of wars and woes and weeping, there is always room for more dissenters. The Bucknellians we will remember will be largely found in this illustrious group. Their funeral sermon will not cause the minister any embarrassment for something good to say about the deceased.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR

The attempt to produce a better yearbook has been some fun and some consternation . . . mostly the latter. This was so because many of the staff members who had been anxious to be connected with the publication—who were especially happy to find that it was hoped to be an outstanding book—were all finished working once recognition had been assured.

It should be safe to assume that L'AGENDA is representative of those activities with which students are anxious to become associated since almost two hundred people asked to be listed as part of the staff.

Producing a successful yearbook requires more than retaking old pictures with new people and rewriting old copy with new names; it requires initiative, ingenuity, and time. Most of all, it requires working for the goal of achievement—for the reward of a job well done—for the experience of working in unison with others through to completion. This has been exceedingly difficult for many who have been blinded by the glitter of an overabundance of Balfour baubles. Responsibility has become, for altogether too many, a trinket to wear on a key chain or necklace.

Working in close connection with the organizations that had apparently been instituted for the purpose of furthering interest in their respective fields has brought much to light for this editor. Unfortunately, many of these organizations have been corrupted in a manner that has caused recognition to relegate the learning, experience, and reward of accomplishment to a poor second place. It has resulted in an attitude towards services on the part of many students that has made it difficult for others who depend upon them. This was true of L'AGENDA this year.

Fortunately, there were a few on the staff who were working for the purposes, previously listed, that make for a job well done.

It has been our intention in preparing this book to present the organizations as an intrinsic part of our educational system. To a large extent they are, or it would have been impossible to present them as such. It is hoped that this publication will serve, to some extent, to shift the emphasis in these organizations toward those values which make an education worthwhile and which provide for responsible, constructive citizenship.

The opinions herein expressed are those of the Editor who has reached these conclusions through attitudes he has observed on the part of those with whom he has come in contact in this capacity. The responsibility of these words is his alone.
